

Dimensions of Diversity in Teacher Education

The DAAD funded project "Dimensions of Diversity in Teacher Education" aims to promote the sustainable internationalisation of teacher training at the partnering universities. It is intended to facilitate stays abroad and to eliminate as many obstacles as possible, so that more students and teachers can go abroad to study and conduct research in the future. Mobility and exchanges will be organised at different levels and through various channels, including traditional student exchanges as well as guest lectureships abroad and summer schools. Digital formats will also form part of this. Trainee teachers taking part in the exchanges will be supported both before and after their stay abroad, for example, through intercultural training sessions and the use of digital tools.

STUDY & RESEARCH ABROAD

The project facilitates stays abroad aiming at a higher mobility for both students and teachers to study and conduct research

TEACHING ACROSS BORDERS

International online learning experience introducing different lesson designs

VIRTUAL LECTURE EXCHANGE

The partner universities visit each other in lectures and offer joint classes

SUMMER & WINTER SCHOOLS

Hybrid conferences that are concerned with hands-on approaches moving the discussion from theory to practice

Future plans

Joint development of a "Certificate Programme International Teacher Education" to enable our institutions to offer long-term international learning experiences to all TE students
